

Country families needed for biggest type 1 diabetes study

28 April 2016

Families living in regional South Australia will now be able to participate in the nation's largest study into the causes of type 1 diabetes in early life.

The study will be led by the University of Adelaide's Robinson Research Institute and the Women's and Children's Hospital and is looking into why the number of type 1 diabetes cases has doubled over the past 20 years.

If you live outside of metro Adelaide and want to find out more about the study, www.endia.org.au/about/the-endia-study