

One in 24 million

16 February 2016

Baby Ivy was born at the Women's and Children's Hospital just four minutes after Australia's population officially ticked over to 24 million, making her birth a very special delivery.

Mum Kirra-Lee and dad Dylan were happy to share their news with viewers of Channel 7 news and The Advertiser.

The Australian population officially ticked over to 24 million on February 16 at 12.21am according to calculations based on current migration, birth and death rates.
